a preview

Excipient World to mark 30th anniversary of IPEC-Americas

Excipient World, the leading education, networking, and sourcing resource for the global excipient market, will be held September 27-29 at the Gaylord National Resort & Convention Center in National Harbor, MD. The conference is the only US event focused exclusively on excipients and their vital role in the development, formulation, quality, compliance, and availability of drugs and consumer healthcare products.

This year's conference will mark the 30th anniversary of IPEC-Americas and will feature one day of preconference workshops and two days of educational sessions. Topics include elemental impurities, excipient regulations, 3D printing, novel excipients, content uniformity, enteric coating, supply chain security, excipient sourcing, and the FDA's Inactive Ingredient Database.

On day one of the conference (Tuesday), journalist Katherine Eban, author of Bottle of Lies: The Inside Story of the Generic Drug Boom, will deliver a keynote presentation, and day two (Wednesday) will feature a session of rapid-fire poster presentations.
